

TO FAST, BUT NOT TOO HARD
TUNIS, Wed. (A.A.P.).

Three hundred Islamic students decided at Sfax today to fast in relays.

This is their answer to the imprisonment yesterday of eight students for 10 days, and the fining of 14 others for illegally demonstrating against France.

At first the students said "We shall stop in bed in university dormitories until our comrades are set free," but police cleared them out of the dormitories.

So the students moved to the Grand Mosque and began a "relay fast."

Tonight many of them were crouching on reed mats chanting verses from the Koran and discussing politics.

Many shops in Sfax closed as a protest against the sentences.

TO FAST, BUT NOT TOO HARD

TUNIS, Wed. (A.A.P.).—
Three hundred Islamic students decided at Sfax today to fast in relays.

This is their answer to the imprisonment yesterday of eight students for 10 days, and the fining of 14 others for illegally demonstrating against France.

At first the students said "We shall stop in bed in university dormitories until our comrades are set free," but police cleared them out of the dormitories.

So the students moved to the Grand Mosque and began a "relay fast."

Tonight many of them were crouching on reed mats chanting verses from the Koran and discussing politics.

Many shops in Sfax closed as a protest against the sentences.